

Hello! My name's Alice. I was born in Moura, Alentejo, Portugal.

In Moura, the Monday after Easter is celebrated like a Municipal Holiday.

No one works, except those who work in the Services.

The population of the small town goes to the fields, along the streams (Toutalga, Brenhas, Ardila) and also the left bank of the Guadiana River.

Picnics are held in fields that look more like carpets of shades: yellow, purple and red, due to the abundance of marigolds, lilies of the fields and poppies.

It's wonderful to hear the birds singing and celebrate the rebirth of nature and life!

People eat the tasty roast lamb, honey cake and almonds that characterize the season. Wine and beer flow on the lips of the diners.

Already happy, people sing mournful songs, in voices, typical of the "Canto Alentejano".

I love this day, because it celebrates the symbiosis of Man and Nature.
